

Shared Directories

The law school provides directories that can be accessed by multiple users. Most law school departments have a shared directory for finished work product storage. Only users that have access to the shared directory may store or alter documents in the shared directory. The clinic and journals use shared directories for multiple student access (See Mapping a Law School Network Drive).